Race condition occurs if two or more threads modify the shared data at the same time.

For example, in the Go code provided - two goroutines try to modify same Queue, resulting in a non-deterministic output of the programme (sometimes last message is first, sometimes - second).

Try to run the programme multiple times, to see that actual output is different almost each time.